Sacrifices
Odaylans always leave a part of their prey for the god, Primary prey animals include wild cattle, deer, rabbits, wild pig, wild sheep, and waterfowl. Butchery requires precision to return the beast to the natural cycle of life and death and to gain the most meat and material from the carcass. Chants and songs accompany this activity.
Hunters take their prey’s last breath into themselves, They also eat a portion of the animal’s liver, usually freshly cut from the warm corpse.
